ASSISTANCE PROVIDED

1. Describe the assistance that your organization provided to beneficiaries. Specify which activities were covered by the UNVTFCS grant, and if any services were provided through referrals (include the number of beneficiaries under each type of assistance noting that one beneficiary can receive multiple types of assistance).

a. MedicalSub-Category*Medical assessments

During the period covered by this project, twenty-five (25) victims of human trafficking/domestic servitude were examined for signs of abuse by the caseworkers. Medical examinations like STD, HIV, were also conducted on the survivors by a medical personnel and post-examination counselling sessions were carried out on them to ensure that the survivors maintain good hygiene and sanitation and free from malnutrition and anaemia. Consequently, they were all informed of their test results; according to the medical test results, two females have STD and HIV out of the twenty-five survivors. They were counselled and registered for monthly clinic/anti-retroviral drugs. They were also encouraged to socialize for their mental well-being.

b. PsychologicalSub-Category*Individual therapy

The victims of trafficking (VoT) were scheduled for an interactive session where caseworkers have an opportunity to carefully listen to the VoT as they share the trauma they have experienced while overseas or at their madam's places. It was observed that many of them seemed to have a kind of renewed hope to start afresh, if given some assistance and support. They were counselled to build their self-esteem and confidence which was evident in their faces and voices at the end of the session. All of them sounded mentally alright and anxiously looking forward to having their working tools and be independent.

c. SocialSub-Category*Income generating activities

After the psychological assistance, most of the survivors assisted during the project have vocational skills before they were trafficked; some of those who were undergoing domestic servitude among them were being trained in tailoring and hairdressing vocations. WICCI, will continue to monitor them at the business centres. The twenty-five (25) beneficiaries that have been screened/profiled among the fifty-five VoT attended a one-day Business Management Skills Training workshop that was organized for them in December 2024. The start-up tools for the 25 beneficiaries were presented to them all as at December 2024. Among them were: two (2) cobblers, two (2) phone-charging business beneficiaries, five (5) hairdressers, seven (7) fashion designers, four (4) fabric-stoning designers, four (4) make-up artists, one (1) grinding machine beneficiary.

d. Educational or vocational or skills trainings

Only two of the beneficiaries went to fashion-designing training school to learn tailoring for a year. The rest of the VoT were either have gained vocational skills before they were trafficked or were in training as at the time they were referred to WICCI. A 16-year-old female survivor was re-enrolled back to school; she could not join her mates who were in Senior Secondary School 3 as at the time she was rescued by National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons (NAPTIP) and referred to WICCI for assistance.

e. LegalSub-Category

Legal assistance and counselling to torture victims on issues not directly aimed at bringing perpetrators to justice or obtaining redress for acts of torture but directly or indirectly resulting from torture (e.g. procedures to obtain medical or social benefits; family reunification applications; housing issues; procedures to obtain work and residence permits)

The caseworkers, during counselling session, advised and encouraged the survivors to expose and prosecute their traffickers. From their narrative, majority of the VoT never seem to see their traffickers before they leave for abroad (Libya, Egypt etc). It is only the recruiters that they know and could recognize. On their return, they don't get to know the whereabouts of their recruiters; it is either they don't bother looking for him/her since they would not want to go back to live in the same community where they were living before being trafficked due to stigmatization. During our intervention, NAPTIP arrested one of the traffickers and prosecuted him in a court of law. The case is still in court being handled by NAPTIP lawyers.

f. Financial

The beneficiaries were not intended to be given cash directly so, WICCI identified vendors and followed due process of procurement of goods and services in a competitive process for the supply of the equipment for the beneficiaries of the project. The twenty-five (25) beneficiaries were supported with different start-up tools which were supplied by a qualified vendor. We assisted them in conducting assessment of the localities of origin selected and identify types of income generating activities for a better economic rehabilitation.

g. Humanitarian

The twenty-five (25) VoT who have been identified through the screening process were qualified for humanitarian assistance like shelter, food and clothing. Three (3) female beneficiaries were temporarily staying in a temporary Shelter in Abeokuta and Ijebu-Ode, Ogun State while the remaining twenty-two (22) male and female beneficiaries were staying with their parents/guardians. The VoT at the shelter were advised to adhere to shelter security rules and likewise, those staying with their guardians were advised not to run away or be cajoled by anyone again as they would be empowered in their choice of businesses or vocations which WICCI eventually did.

2. Describe any unforeseen challenges faced during project implementation and steps taken to overcome them.

The only unforeseen challenge that we had during project implementation happens during Needs Assessment. The situation when the survivors have no vocational skills to make him/her beneficiaries of start-up tools for income generation and the returnees are not ready to be trained in any vocation on the excuse that age is no longer on their side or the care of their children (being single parents and no relation to help in assisting in the care of the children) is overwhelming; will not permit them. A situation whereby the returnees are enterprise-oriented; are into petty trading or selling of perishable foods/wines before they were trafficked and their interest in the same trade have not changed. The step taken was to advise such survivors to join any recommended cooperative society in their locality. They would be able to assess loan facility after six months of registration with the cooperative society. WICCI encourages them to save from the little they acquire here and there; little drops of water makes an ocean. International organizations such as IOM has been doing a lot in terms of economic empowerment for returnees. Few of the returnees concerned in this case were at the long run provided with income-generating enterprise by IOM.

3. Share key achievements and success stories related to project implementation. Share links to publicly available materials where relevant.

Key achievements and success stories: a. Recognition by TAG International for collaboration in research on behalf of UK government, as part of the existing Brighter Futures programme, looking at irregular migration drivers and enablers, to design economic interventions that will help provide viable alternatives to those at risk, with a focus on Ogun State. b. WICCI was nominated by the National Commission for Refugees, Migrants and Internally Displaced Persons (NCFRMI) to join the National Technical Working Group (TWG) on migration and Migration Data Management Working Group (MDMWG) in 2023. The groups meet quarterly to discuss migration issues and review migration policies and strategies in Nigeria. c. Due to WICCI's activities in the State in the area of the protection and reintegration of survivors of irregular migration and modern slavery, WICCI was also nominated to become a member of recently (September 2024) inaugurated Ogun State Reintegration Committee (RC). The Committee is saddled with the responsibility of collaborating with the State Ministry of Women Affairs and Social Development and other relevant government agencies to ensure that individual, community and structural dimensions are applied for effective reintegration process and the rights of every migrant is secured.
